

Pi Trustee Services appoints Tim Illston as a non-executive director

Pi Trustee Services is delighted to announce the appointment of Tim Illston to its Board, as a non-executive director. Tim was formerly a partner in the highly regarded pensions team at Burges Salmon LLP a leading independent UK law firm where he will continue to act as a consultant.

Roger Cooper, Head of Trusteeship at Pi comments “Tim brings with him a huge amount of experience in the pensions industry. Having had nearly 30 years’ experience as a trustee with Burges Salmon and Temple Trustees a key part of his role will be continuing to develop our governance framework and support our team of professional trustees, particularly in light of our growing number of Sole Trustee appointments.”

Tim confirms a key part of his decision to join the team as a non-executive director was because “Pi has an excellent reputation for its trustee and secretarial services, and is well known for its practical, personable and collegiate approach”.

We would be delighted to answer any questions relating to this press release.
